Dulwich Gallery is a part of the well-known Dulwich College, and is famous for its fine collection of Dutch masterpieces and other beautiful paintings. The pictures number 360, and are distributed through five large rooms. The collection was first formed for Stanislaus, King of Poland, but, through his death, was left on the dealer's hands. The dealer (Noel Desenfans) left them to Sir Francis Bourgeois, who in his turn bequeathed them in 1811 to the College, also willing £12,000 for their upkeep and the erection of a suitable gallery.

With much love and all best wishes from very sincere Alice

Dear Miss Oliver,

Thank you very much for the post-card. This is the Picture Gallery attached to Dulwich College. Would you care for some more views of the neighbourhood? With kind regards

yours truly

T. W. Geary.
